As part of this project, I developed a top menu bar for the modules, which makes it simpler to understand how to browse the website. When the modules are hovered over, I made them underline so that users will know whether or not they are going to be able to click on the module while it is being highlighted. I went for a green color scheme since it inspires more enthusiasm than more conventional color schemes such as white, black, or gray. I went with a typeface that is easy to read, but if I had more time, I would certainly experiment with a wider variety of fonts. I would experiment with different font sizes to improve the readability of the page.
